L&T IDPL AND TATA STEEL DIVESTS THEIR STAKE IN DHAMRA PORT TO ADANI PORTS

Mumbai, May 16, 2014: L&T Infrastructure Development Projects (“L&T IDPL”), a subsidiary of L&T, and Tata Steel Limited (“Tata Steel”), today announced that they have executed a definitive agreement with Adani Ports & Special Economic Zone (“Adani Ports”) to sell 100% stake in the Dhamra Port Company Limited (“DPCL”) for an Enterprise Value of around ₹ 5500 crore. As per the agreement entered into amongst the parties, the transaction is subject to customary conditions precedent including lenders / third party approvals.

DPCL is a 50:50 joint venture between L&T IDPL and Tata Steel. The port was commissioned in May 2011 with an 18 km approach channel and a dedicated 62.7 km rail link to Bhadrak. In FY 2014, DPCL handled 14.3 mtpa of cargo.

Dhamra Port is a deep draft, all weather multi-user port located on the East Coast of India in the state of Odisha. Dhamra Port has been granted a concession by the Government of Odisha to build and operate a port on BOOST (Build, Own, Operate, Share and Transfer) basis. Dhamra Port commenced operations in May 2011.

As part of L&T IDPL’s review of its investments portfolio, the Board of the Company has approved the divestment of its equity holding on the JV at an attractive valuation.
